

Daniel 10

Daniel 10:5

Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked,
and behold a certain man clothed in linen,

The Man of One

In this chapter he records a vision of very remarkable character, which he saw while in company with certain persons on the banks of Hiddekel or Tigris. The basis of what he saw was ..as... rendered in the English version, "a certain man." It was not a real man, but "the appearance of a man" (ch. 10:18), or "like the similitude of the sons of Adam" (ch. 10:16).

the Man of One

It was the shadowy representation of "the Man of the One" ETERNAL SPIRIT. It was, truly "a certain man," not an uncertain one.... Daniel saw this in Eden, by "the third" of its rivers, "the Hiddekel," where "the Cherubim and the devouring fire" were originally located (Gen. 2:14; 3:24).

the Man of One

What he saw was a symbolic man blazing in glory and power: and representative of the Eternal Spirit that shall be manifested in a NEW ORDER OF ELOHIM. That is, this new order of Elohim shall be an aggregate, or ONE MAN,... or a A PERFECT MAN, with Christ: THE HEAD, from whom the whole Body, fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint (heir) supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the Body unto the edifying of itself in love" (Eph. 4:3, 4, 13, 15, 16). Daniel saw the "perfect man" -- the Eternal manifested in the glorified flesh of a multitude. (Phanerosis, Centenary Edition, pp. 97-98)
